BROOKLYN.

"A Perfect Thing."
The Narcisse Glove.

A Looking Forward.

Lord Roseberry lately said: "I believe taste is a matter very much of experience. You begin with rejection. But you have to know what you dislike before you can like what you ought to like."

Fictions or business subterfuges can never take the place of experience. There's nothing theoretical, intangible or mystical about the success of this store, nothing that we want you to take for granted.

The surroundings, it is true, are built up to please, entertain and inform the ever welcome visitor, but it is only by a thorough and constant practical experience in the art and commercial centres of the world that it has become possible for us to reject what we know you dislike, and just as surely obtain that which we know you do like.

The coming holiday season is close at hand and probably a knowledge of tasteful things is one of the most active factors in it. An adherence to the multiplication table, a counting of dollars and cents can't make beautiful or worthy that which all good taste rejects. Buying something for yourself affects only yourself, but buying something for another affects yourself with one you think worthy to receive your gifts. Buying here is safe, not only because you can save on your purchase in dollars and cents, but because the sterling stamp of worth, quality, genuineness and the best taste go with everything you buy. We do not mean to convey the idea that we believe we are the only store selling worthy things. But the holidays are always flooded with spurious goods, gotten up just for the occasion, and a note of warning now may save you some regrets in the future.

The very much increased capacity of our building, soon to be in full evidence, with the great improvements, the enlarged room and conveniences of every department, will make this store more to be appreciated than ever, and the pleasantest and most convenient shopping place in New York.

The China Store Starts to Meet You

Case after case and hoghead after hoghead of new things have been forming a regular procession to our China Store while you have slept. A preparation for our half-way sale, as it were, before Christmas, and in time for Thanksgiving, at prices for which every purchaser will be truly thankful.

Rich Cut Glass at Two-third Prices.

79c. for Regular $1.25 New Novelty Silks.

This is an offer that will be sure to mark another red letter day in our Silk Store. It is an entirely new lot of Fancy Silks, comprising Taffets, Brocades, small bow knot, and other exceedingly neat designs, deep colors and fancy stripes, Carmelle, Pompadour and Lace effects. These rich Silks have all been made within the last ninety days, and, therefore, in every way entirely new. And here are five important facts in regard to them well worth remembering. Perfect assortment of colorings; styles thoroughly up to date; quality that wears excellently; and quantity enough to suit all and make an impressive sight on our centre tables in the silk room. It's not always easy to get a good variety of Silks for Misses and Children, and among these are many that are just the thing, and then think of the price, 79c. instead of $1.25.

The Opening of Our Permanent Book Store.

Brooklyn has long needed a thoroughly up-to-date and complete Book Store, and we have long contemplated its establishment. Want of space has been the cause of delayed fulfillment. Now, however, with the facilities that our new building will afford, we open up to-morrow a permanent book store, not, however, in the ordinary sense of a department in a large store, but a thoroughly up-to-date and complete repository for books, with just as large and convenient facilities as the regular specialist's shop. A place where the lovers of books may come and browse, and be supplied with everything to be had in literature. In a first announcement like this, we can find space to say little more than the plain fact of opening, and invite you to inspect, criticize and make use of every facility we offer. We will show bindings by the best talent in this country, designs of our own not to be found in any other book store and never before attempted in a Dry Goods Store. Books in every field of literature, Bibles, Prayer Books, Hymnals, Juvenile and Holiday Books, all current periodicals, music, etc. etc. Note our offer of St. Nicholas Magazine.

Our St. Nicholas Magazine Offer.

With a year's subscription to the St. Nicholas at the regular price of $3.00 we will give away any of the $1.50 books of Louisa M. Olcott, Little Men, Little Women, or any other of the popular books of this author. Just the books for Christmas presents, and so is St. Nicholas, the leading juvenile magazine, a splendid present which lasts through the whole year—and the subscription may start any time.

15c. for 33c. Handy Classics.

The most unusual and best offer of Handy Classics ever made. The Books are printed on super-calendered paper, illustrated, and in a very neat binding. The lowest price at which these Books have been sold formerly was 33c. Our opening sale price, 15c. There are eighteen titles, all of which are the best.

Furnishings to Interest Every Man.

75c. FOR $1.50 FANCY SHIRTS—Two cases of fancy Scotch Madras Shirts were shipped to us over a month ago, and through some one's carelessness did not reach us until yesterday. Hence the half price. Women's Tailor Made Suits & Overgarments

The maker of these ready-to-wear costumes is climbing to fame. If he were to use the stamp of such a name as Worth attained on them, the garments wouldn't be better made, but they would bring many times the prices we offer them at to-morrow. Then we got them cheap, anyway, and you will like them if you like the pair.

AT $10.25 INSTEAD OF $18.00 TO $11.50 INSTEAD OF $16.25—125 Coats, Irish frieze or tan kersey cloth, velvet collar, lined with Skinner's satin.
